

I do NOT support expanding corporate rights to own a larger number of licenses and media holdings. US media outlets have demonstrated through poor performance why they need regulation, and that media conglomerates should be smaller in order to represent the views of a diverse population. The FCC has proven that they don't represent the US people, but rather the media conglomerates they are supposed to be regulating. Since the FCC is made up of many elected officials, let's vote them all out in the next election. The reason the behavior of the FCC is so important is because they regulate the level playing field in the US media, and if they fail as they have recently, our ability to correct them is diminished. Look today at the lack of comprehensive coverage in today's mainstream media to see a most worrisome example. Vote them all out, it's our only hope!!
